Subject: City encourages residents to explore Prince George by bus - Prince George Citizen From JOS PENNER

Hi Allan,

I receive the Prince George Citizen newsletter daily as my son lives in Prince George, so it keeps me updated on Police activity! [REDACTED]

I thought the following article was a great idea for promoting the city buses and might be possible for Salmon Arm as there seems to be funding for the activity.

Just a thought for what it's worth!

Hope your day goes well!

I appreciate all you do for Salmon Arm!

Thank you!

Jos Penner

The City of Prince George is encouraging people who don't usually use transit to explore their community by bus this summer through a new initiative called the Transit Challenge.

The program aims to encourage people who don't normally take public transit to try visiting a city facility, community event or park by bus, and to complete one or more of the following challenges:

- Find your comfy spot: Tell the city where you like to sit on the bus and why
- Window view reflection: What did you see out the window that caught your eye?
- Spot some art: Share a mural or colourful design you noticed on the bus, at a stop or along the way

Residents can complete the challenge by submitting a written entry or creating a piece of art.

Completed entries can be submitted at any of the listed locations or emailed to getinvolved@princegeorge.ca by Aug. 1.

Participants who submit a completed form will be entered into a draw for prizes, including:

- Pool and YMCA passes
- Transit tickets and UMO cards
- Visa gift cards
- Mr. PG shopping bags
- Sonos Roam 2 smart speaker

The city reported that the program is made possible in part by a BC Healthy Communities Age-friendly Communities grant. The Age-friendly Communities Program is delivered by the BC Healthy Communities Society and funded by the BC Ministry of Health.
